ZEAVE DENIES WIFE'S LIBEL

Went to the Coast to Look for Work With Her Consent.

Nathan Zeave, answering the libel in divorce of his wife Fannie, denies the allegation that he deserted her. He says that in February, 1904, with her consent, he went to San Francisco to look for employment at his trade of carpenter. A depression in business here had thrown him out of work.

It is denied that he, being of sufficient ability, had refused to support her in the mode of living to which she was accustomed. Since the month of December, 1902, she had been employed at a salary of $150 a month, the libelee saying she accepted such employment and continued therein of her own free will and accord. It is stated that, as a result of their joint efforts and labors, a considerable amount of property has been accumulated, which is community property. This consists of real and personal property, standing on the records and deposited in bank in the name of Fannie Zeave. She, it is alleged, has not accounted for said community property, nor for its management or disposition, it being in her exclusive possession, management and control.

He prays that libelant take nothing by her libel but that she be commanded to account for the community property. J. J. Dunne, with a Coast attorney, represents the libelee. Thompson & Clemons are attorneys for the libelant.

TWO DIVORCES.

William McDermott was granted a divorce from his wife Dinah on the ground of a statutory offense. Bertha Johanna Richards was rid of her husband, Frederick James Richards, for his failure to provide maintenance. Both decrees were granted by Judge De Bolt.

PROBATE.

Judge De Bolt approved the final accounts of Dr. Hodgins in administration of the estate of the late Mrs. Hodgins.

AYRES GOES UP TO GRAND JURY

Prosecuted by the Postoffice Officials—Released on $1000 Bond.

Herbert Melton Ayres, editor and owner of The Referee, was committed to the Federal grand jury by U. S. Commissioner George A. Davis yesterday morning, on the charge of circulating lewd matter through the mails. He was released under a bond in $1000 furnished by himself and Mrs. Ayres.

It was an error to say that District Attorney Breckons laid the information. Frederick J. Hare, Postoffice Inspector, was the one who swore out the warrant. He and Jos. G. Pratt, postmaster of Honolulu, and District Magistrate Whitney were the witnesses called at the examination. Although the District Attorney had been consulted in the first instance, it was the postoffice inspector who sent The Referee to Washington, and the Deputy Attorney General attached to the Postoffice Department advised the prosecution of Ayres.

The Commissioner quoted the following from United States v. Moore, 129 Federal Reporter at page 151: "The poison of the asp may lie beneath the honeyed tongue, just as a beautiful flower may contain a deadly odor." "It is the effect of the language employed, conveying obscene, lewd, or lascivious suggestions, tainted with immorality and impurity, which is struck at by the statute."

Commissioner Davis, on this authority, held that the necessary inference from the article in question—the "Patolo" article—was obscene and tended to offend the sense of decency, and it was immaterial if the words used were not in themselves obscene. He considered the article a violation of the statute, otherwise he would have discharged the defendant.

Ayres was not represented by counsel at the examination.

THE MALIHINI.

And lo! a malihini came down from the wilds of Frisco and chanced upon an Ehlers sale and his eyes were opened and he departed musing deeply. There's reason for his musing, as a visit to their lace sale next Thursday will demonstrate.

UNREST IN BENGAL.

The unrest in Bengal is becoming increasingly serious. Several assaults upon Europeans have taken place on the Assam-Bengal Railway. First and second-class carriages are nightly pelted with stones, and the passengers carry rifles and revolvers. A police inspector named Crabbe was murdered recently, and many of the guards and engine-drivers are afraid to perform their duties.

JAPANESE NOT DECEIVED.

It is noticeable that the more closely the intelligent representatives of Japan now in this country study the navy yards, the battleships and the land as well as the naval defenses of the United States, the more emphatic are their protestations of the peaceful attitude of their people. The declaration by German experts that the American navy is impotent is flouted by the head of the Japanese navy, when he inspects the resources at the command of the United States. Even criticisms of the navy by alleged naval technical journals lose their force when personal inspection by the Japanese experts does not disclose those defects.—Rochester Democrat.
